First Review Translations

When time is of the essence and you just need to preview the contents of a document, we provide an expedited first-copy review. Although a qualified linguist performs the initial translation, the first-review document doesn't include the level of proofreading or editing necessary for certification. First-review translations are appropriate for internal use and initial review only.

Translation and Proofreading

When you need a translation suitable for publication, external use or certification, we deliver a high-quality document, fully proofread and edited for letter-perfect accuracy, factoring in subtle nuances like intention and tone. A qualified linguist performs the initial translation before a second specialized linguist proofreads and edits the document, delivering the same quality and precision of the original document.

Certified Translations

Precision is paramount. Accuracy matters. Sometimes you need a certificate to confirm that the document has been translated to the highest possible standard. In cases like these, TranslateOne provides a certification letter to verify that documents have completed our full translation, editing and proofreading process.

Summary Translations

Sometimes you don't need a full translation. You just want to understand the usefulness of a document. For simple clarity, we offer a brief review of a contents page or specific clauses and information based on your instructions.

Machine Translations

When speed is priority, our fully managed, intuitive machine translation services take care of large volumes of translation. We offer tailor-made translation in over 80 language combinations. For quick translation of small documents in-house, we provide an advanced desktop machine translation app that runs on a secure private network, unlike those offered on public websites. We get it all done fast.

eDiscovery

As a leading eDiscovery and translations service provider, we have the depth of experience working on multilingual discovery cases to know what matters most. Managing a client's requirements in an intelligent manner optimizes efficiency and cost. Trustpoint.One offers the solutions you need to master the discovery process.

Advantages Include:

Faster Insight

Language Identification provides high-level reports on data sets and identifies the resources required for discovery.

Volume Efficiency

Use machine translations to decode large volumes of data, saving resources in the review process.

Trial-Ready

Translation by qualified linguists ensures credibility during witness interviews and court presentations.

Complete Legal Coverage

Due Dilligence

Translate.One offers high-volume machine-based summary translation to clarify document content and usefulness, and full translation for more detailed document review. In addition, we design and implement custom workflows with your data room provider so that your projects run seamlessly.

IP & Patent Filings

Translate.One delivers qualified translation for your IP/Patent filing requirements. We offer the benefit of translation memory to improve consistency, speed up delivery and reduce the cost of future translations or amendments. We translate all Intellectual Property requirements including:

- Patents
- Prior-art documents
- Expert reports
- Trademarks applications
- Actions and amendments
- Communications
- Copyrights

Witness Statements

When it comes to translating witness statements and depositions, accurate reflection of witness remarks is crucial. Correct review and editing is required to verify documents for official use. We provide certified, sworn and notarized translations as required.

Internal Communications

Whether you're distributing official documents for internal review or simply sending an email to a colleague or client, Translate.One delivers fast, accurate and secure translations for all internal communication channels.

Review

Review can be time-consuming and costly when working with multilingual documents, especially when internal resources in the language required are limited. Translate.One supports the review of foreign language documents with a high level of efficiency, reducing the amount of external resources, time and cost required to complete a task.
